

Some photos of the Amherst College “mystery object”, in President Marx’s office as of Jan, 2004. I think it fits over the head of a subject. Seems to be a complicated (and expensive) way of getting information that one could (for the most part) obtain with a tape measure, if one’s goal is to measure head size. It would give some information, too, about shape and perhaps indentations as well as simple circumference.
